Mercy Works – Indigenous Projects

About Us

Mercy Works is a community development organisation, inspired by the legacy of Catherine McAuley. In partnership with local organisations, Mercy Works supports vulnerable communities, both in Australia and across the Asia Pacific region, with a particular focus on women and children. Their programs promote capacity building, self-reliance, and environmental sustainability.

Their refugee and Indigenous projects are spread across Australia and focus on education as a means of empowering our newest and oldest members of society.
